Hello Gretchen,

The L.T. Murray sites (Whiskey Dick Creek and Skookumchuck Creek) originally had an archaeology survey performed by DNR, instead of WDFW.

When DNR does an archaeology assessment, all that is provided to WDFW is a letter, no actual survey report is written.

I have attached the letter from DNR, with the archaeology survey information for the L.T. Murray Wildlife Area Whiskey Dick and Skookumchuck Creek fencing project .

Before the DNR survey results letter was received, The Yakima Tribe, had written a letter to WDFW (enclosed) asking to see results of the study when it was received.

The DNR survey letter was then sent to the Yakima Tribe for concurrence with DNRs no effect findings. WDFW asked the Tribe if there was any further interest in the project.

We received on April 10th the Yakima tribes concurrence with DNRs archaeological assessment of the project site, stating that they have no further interest in the project.

I hope this addresses all of your concerns with this project.

Cindy

Hi Lisa,

Please forward the cultural resources report that is referenced in the SEPA documents. We cannot complete our review without it and the project area has a very high potential for containing archaeological resources.
