

Historical range of the Cascade red fox

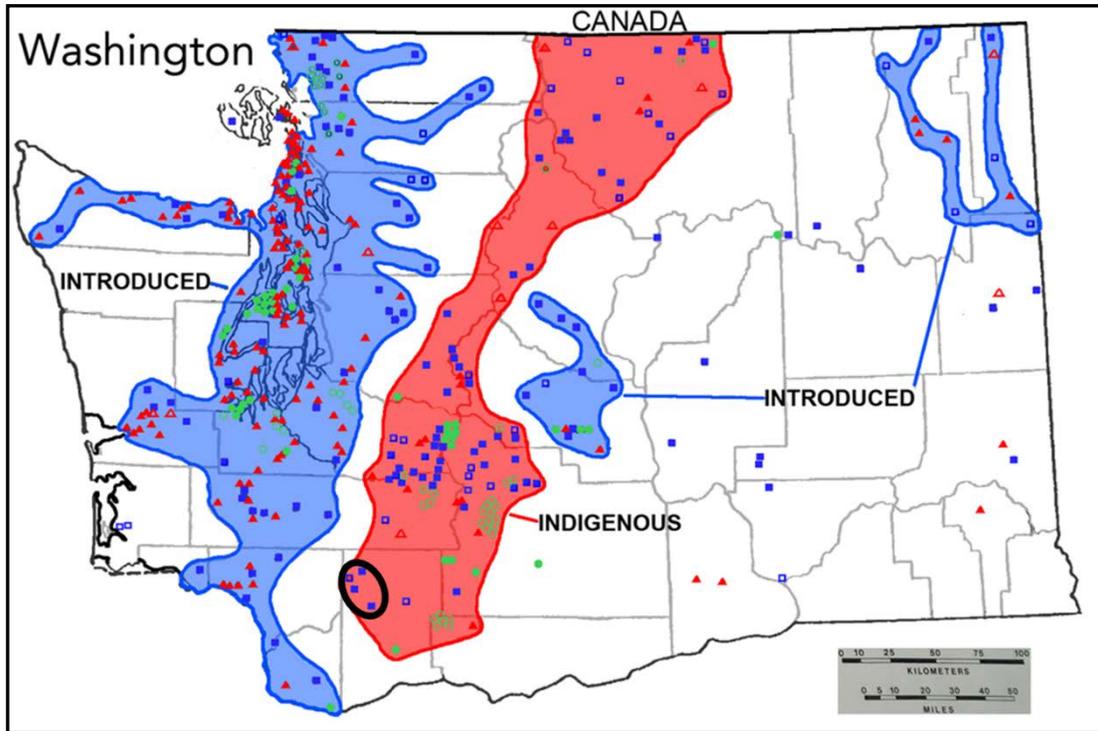

Figure 3. Historical range of the Cascade red fox as indicated by the red shading and labeled “indigenous” in the center of the map, with associated fox detections (modified from Aubry 1983, 1984; squares= sighting reports, triangles = trapping reports, circles = museum specimen records). Although Aubry (1983, 1984) reported unverified red fox detections in the vicinity of the Mount Saint Helen’s National Volcanic Monument (i.e., the 4 points within the black oval), there is little historical and no recent verifiable detections to indicate that this area was part of the species’ historical range (K. Aubry, pers. comm.; J. Akins unpublished data).