Public involvement process used and what you learned:

In February 2015, the agency sent out a press release and posted a request on our website to solicit information from the public to be included in the periodic status review. In accordance with WAC regulations, individuals and organizations had one year to contribute information for the reviews. Staff included this information, as applicable, in the status review document. The document was then reviewed by WDFW staff and external species experts before a 90-day public comment period began on the document and our findings. The comments were collated, responded to, and included in the final Periodic Status Review.
